TD1.3. Bridging the Gap: Walkability at the Heart of Public Transport

11:00 - 12:30 Tuesday, 7th October, 2025 | Location: Mustard cube

This session explores the relationship between walking and public transport, examining how integrated planning can enhance accessibility, efficiency, and sustainability in cities. Discussions consider strategies for embedding walking within transport frameworks, aligning pedestrian priorities with transit systems, and assessing the impact of walkability. Examples from Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, and Kosovo illustrate different pathways for bridging the gap between modes to create more connected and liveable communities.
